

RAISING YOUR CHILDREN IN A DIGITAL WORLD

Dr Kristy Goodwin helps parents and professionals find the best ways to use technology to support, not stifle young children's learning and development. She marries the latest research from a range of disciplines (including neuroscience, developmental science and technology research) to provide a comprehensive and cutting-edge perspective about the impact of "digitalised childhoods" on young children's learning, health and wellbeing.

Kristy shows that technology isn't necessarily toxic or taboo and it won't damage children's development if it's used the right ways. And that's exactly what Kristy shares in these seminars: how to use technology in healthy and helpful ways.
