

Australian
National University

ANU Bachelor of Philosophy Symposium

Friday 26 August 2016 6.00pm-8.00pm

Manning Clark Centre, Theatre 2, Building 26A, Union Court, ANU Campus

You are invited to the inaugural Bachelor of Philosophy (PhB) Symposium. Held the evening before ANU Open Day, this event will allow potential undergraduate students to see what happens at ANU.

About the PhB program and symposium

The PhB program at ANU is one of the most prestigious and rewarding degrees across Australia, offering unique opportunities to participate in real research at the undergraduate level. Students are required to complete a few research projects throughout, and these often take place at the frontiers of the field with one-on-one guidance from experts. Currently the PhB covers the sciences, arts, and Asia-Pacific studies.

The PhB Symposium at ANU is an exciting chance for the broader community to hear about the rewards of the PhB from the students themselves. PhB students will give short presentations on research projects they've taken across the sciences, arts, and Asia-Pacific studies, showcasing the many opportunities offered in PhB and tertiary education overall. Nibbles will be provided.

The event will be launched by the ANU Vice Chancellor, Professor Brian Schmidt.

Register now

Register via Eventbrite at bit.ly/ANU-PHB

For further information, contact

E externalrelations.cass@anu.edu.au

T 02 6125 8207

ANU College of Arts & Social Sciences

www.anu.edu.au/study/events

CRIICOS# 00120C

STUDENT SYMPOSIUM